The Light Elder has had to stop Canis many times before.
There's history there.
He might just be willing to help us.

SPIRITS

The Soul Collector

BY COLIN LAWLER
& JOSEPH GRABOWSKI

Gah! Nani, I can do it myself--
This is yours now.

ugh...
Nani, I don't understand why we have to leave at night.
Shouldn't we just call a doctor instead and wait 'til it's light out?
Will, I need you to be strong.
This is beyond modern medicine.

Your brother's soul has been lifted from his body.
It has to be you who returns it.
But... how can a person live without his soul?
Shouldn't he be—
—Will is right, Grandma Miriam.
No body can survive without its soul.

How long could we possibly have?
Let's just say Herman is a very special tree spirit.
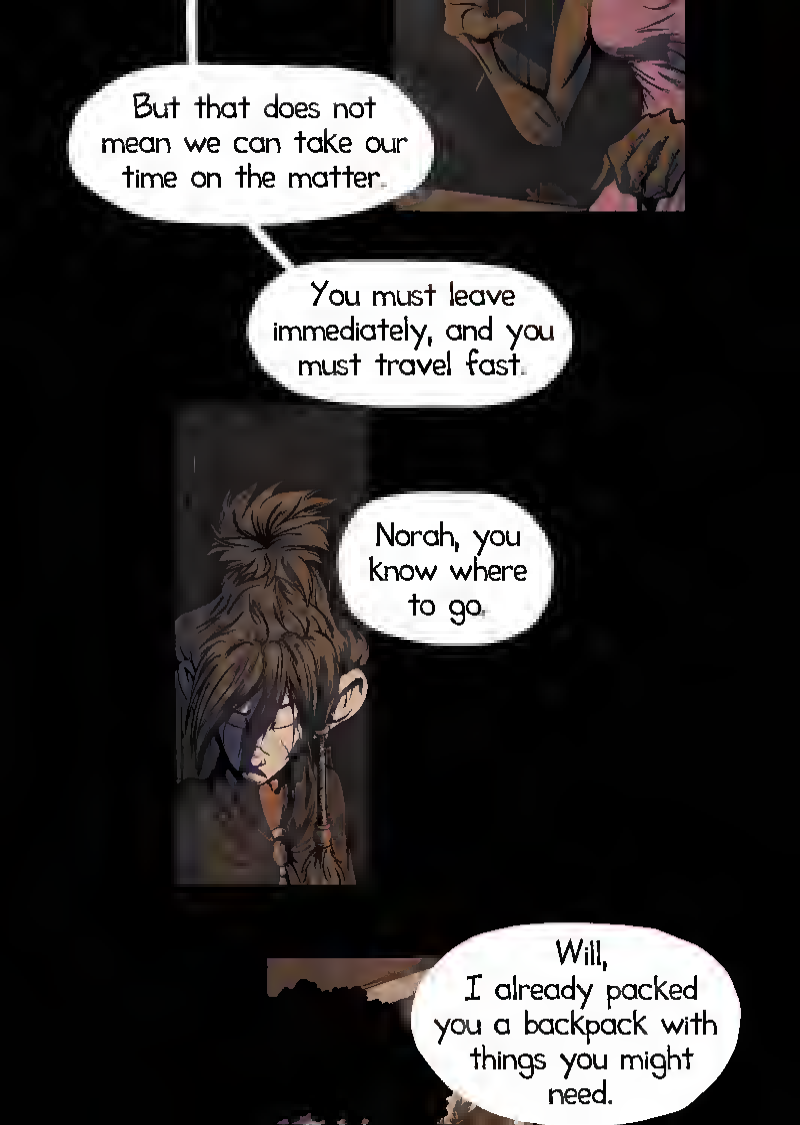
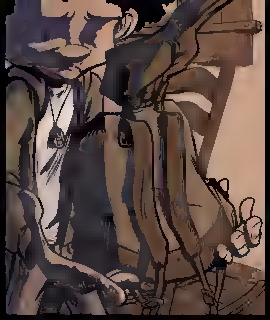
I can speak no more on it, but I promise you, Kenny's body will be fine for now.



But that does not mean we can take our time on the matter.
You must leave immediately, and you must travel fast.
Norah, you know where to go.
Will, I already packed you a backpack with things you might need.



But Nani, why does it have to be me?

He has another point, Grandma Miriam.
I would be able to move much faster if I didn't have to babysit a 12-year-old.
I don't need babysitting!
Will, be grateful for Norah.
She saved you in the woods, and you'll need her protection on your journey.
And Norah, be patient with my grandson.

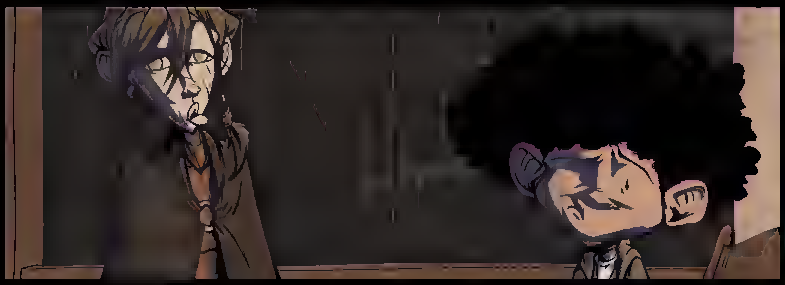
He has to be the one.

This is a story I fear has already been told.

I believe this is all a part of something bigger. I can't explain any more than that.

Will, trust me when I say I had no idea either you or your brother would be in danger

But now, this is the only way.



It's time to go.

I put some sondwiches ond other goodies in the bag for when you get hungry.
